"As a teacher of Lip-reading of some years standing, I have naturally read many text books on this subject, analysed them and adapted them for my own use and that of my students. There are many aspects of the subject, and each plays a vital part in the final adjustment of the student to life, where ' eyes must take the place of ears!'" Miss Wyatt, a brave and very generous woman, shares with the world of deafness, her secret of success. This generosity is what makes yer book such a very valuable addition to the existing small selection of books dealing with this subject.
