A Tree in Winter Sherry Newcomb, Jean Nava

This story is set in the mid-twentieth century in the American Midwest—Chicago and the Sand Hills of Nebraska. It is written with great sensitivity for that time and locale. The story is told by a young woman whose family has fallen from wealth to poverty. Her younger brother, for whom she assumes responsibility, battles crippling polio, and she blames God for these misfortunes. A terrible automobile accident seems to be the crowning blow, and she leaves Chicago to start a new life, but escape is not so easy. She fights the salvation and the beautiful love that God has planned for her, but in the end He wins. Many delightful characters and an exciting mystery make this a book you won't put down.
