LOVE. FREEDOM. FAMILY. THREE WORDS DILLAN DANIELS KNOWS NOTHING ABOUT. After growing up in a very physically and mentally abusive life, Dillan finds her hand on the door of The Forge, renowned training camp for mixed martial arts champions. As the only daughter of an infamous Las Vegas fight promoter, she grew up in the fight world alone without emotional connections and under lock and key. Running away in the middle of the night like a scared kid however, was not her idea of what an MMA fighter does. William "Saint" Barnett, is the golden boy of MMA. He uses his status and money for outreach programs and education services all over the world. The money and achievements aren't enough to give him the redemption he desperately seeks. He is a fallen man being chased by memories of his past, until the most important piece of that past comes walking through the door with "demon eyes" and changes everything. Dillan is being pursued by a demon of her own. When that stiletto-heeled demon finds her, secrets will be revealed and lies uncovered. Weeks away from a fight that will launch her career, Dillan will have to learn quickly the meaning of love, freedom, and family. She will have to start trusting not only herself, but the people around her. She will have to test the connections she has just formed in order to protect herself from the one she just broke. When you fall, you have two choices: give up or get up. Dillan promised herself that she would never fall again, but in the fight to hold on to her new family, keep her freedom and find her heart, she will have to fall one last time.
